AIR FORCE RESERVE INSPECTOR GENERAL FRANK MARTINEZ JOINS CPS

Sacramento, CA – Air Force Reserve Inspector General, Frank Martinez, joins Cooperative Personnel Services as its Principal Consultant for Investigation Services.

Martinez joins a number of former top state personnel and administrative executives at CPS, which provides human resource consulting and other services to public agencies, utilities and other organizations across North America.

In his new position, Martinez will consult, coordinate and conduct workplace investigations for public agencies in California and throughout the United States.

Martinez said that Work place investigations have become a growing issue in public agencies and with our expertise, we can provide quick, confidential and low cost investigative services to the public sector.

Previously, Martinez has performed regulatory compliance assessments, workload assessments, EEO/ADA investigations, process reengineering and training for the Air Force, state agencies and regulated utilities. He recently completed a complaint system reengineering that insured legally mandated service for the Contractors State License board, a workload assessment for the Franchise Tax Board and two Environmental Health Inspector misconduct investigations. Mr. Martinez has served on public oversight committees and commissions reporting to city and county governments.

Martinez holds BS and MBA degrees in Management and is a Total Quality Management and Customer Service trainer.

Cooperative Personnel Services provides human resource and management consulting to more than 1,500 state, local and national government agencies, public and private utilities and other organizations throughout the United States and Canada.
